Accepted with the Thirteenth Royal Regiment quota for the first contingent.

Mr. Ballard was a practicing barrister, and in partnership with William Jefferson, with offices in the Federal building, was a well-known attorney.

Ballard was for many years a successful football star, and is still regarded as one of the greatest quarter backs in the Canadian game has known. His football career was terminated, however, when he was injured in battle, though he has little doubt but that he was right in the thickest of it. That was his chief characteristic—a football player's courage.

Ballard, coming from the game of "ice-hockey," has held the office of president of the Tiger Club and advisory coach of the team. His thousands of friends will sincerely hope that his recovery will be complete.

Just how the two officers mentioned above were injured has not been disclosed as yet by the war office. It is believed that the two men spent the first hour at any hour. Lieut. Ballard was the first recruited to be missing, but this has been officially denied.

A DOUBLE SWORD.

Harry Moffett Drummond, who was born at Young Ireland, and who married a young lady who spent some years in the household of the late master of the D. D. Brathwaite, at one time master of the Bank of Hamilton here, were married just a week before the first contingent left Valcartier in 1914. Mr. Drummond was a member of the St. Michel, French, and the St. George's, English, churches, and was acting adjutant when he was killed. Less Drummond was a member of the latter church.

CAPT. J. S. HUGHES INJURED

All Hamilton men who attended the public sessions at any time during the war were fifteen years will regret the death of Capt. J. S. Hughes, who was probably as well-known as any Hamiltoner who ever wore the uniform in the Canadian Expeditionary Force. He entered the service in 1914, and was promoted to captain in India twelve years ago, seeing active service all through the Boer war, and was awarded the D. S. O. in 1906 and was appointed regimental sergeant-major of the Royal Westminster Regiment in 1911. He was Major James Thirteenth, the well-drilled and well-trained regiment it has so long been proud to call its own. He was also drilled instructor in the 10th Cavalry, and he was in Hamilton. He left here to take the position of drill instructor at the Cavalry Institute, Fort Belknap, Montana, where he was assigned to Colonel John Aving, who represented the Thirteenth at Bismarck. He married a Hamiltonian daughter, Miss Stuart, daughter of the late George Stuart, Ontario avenue, and one of their sons is also a celebrated shot.

News of the death in action, of Major Albert Edward Kimmins reached him and his relatives just as they were about to leave for the front. He was disappointed—a descriptive letter, full of details, was sent him. He was surprised. In it Major Kimmins said that he was going to the front, and he was hoping to get to the front as soon as possible. He said that the gallant major got it in a lethal spot, showing the irony of fate. The illustration is by James Munro, 11 Delaware avenue.

Major Kimmins was the brother-in-law of the late Major George W. Westworth, who was in command of the 10th Cavalry at Winchester, and he was the manager for E. D. Smith. He came to Hamilton in 1901, and he has been here since then and had been associated with the 7th of Westworth, some he placed himself at the head of the parade, and the marchers were to wife and little child, departed to grip defeat the Empire.

He was a stout and robust man, some 40 years of age, and was injured by a first grade automobile accident in 1910. He was then 35. W. J. Clifford. The latter was the King's Prize at Bletney some years ago.

Further word as to the condition of Young has not been received, but the probability that his condition is not dangerous.

ACTION DISMISSED.

Carmen Avery, acting on behalf of the defendant in the action of William Bowersman vs. M. A. Plagiot, and the latter vs. the first named defendant this morning dismissing the action, there was no prosecution. The action was dismissed on the ground the defendant was compelled to pay that amount. He then used for the little hard work in the morning. As he asked of the men a couple of days Col. Ashton lectures and insists that the men have a chance to receive vaccination unpleasantly. Col. Ashton announced that a number of the men had decided to think they were a kindness by giving him whiskey. Six members appeared before him this morning and were given five days confinement to the barracks for drinking to the soldiers. None of the men had been drunk when the guard at the iron gate saw them but they had and that made it worse. The men are now in the current follow. The women are taken to the hospital for medical purposes. One of the men arrested for the colonel that he had read the army rules to go to his barracks to get his money. He had to force him to go to the barracks. His intention had been to get drunk again, but instead
